BATTLE HYMN OF THE ROSSES

(Tune: "Battle Hymn of the Republic")

Among the people who can boast of noble pedigree,
The Rosses are quite famous and a grand old family;
We cherish our ancestors, kinsmen and posterity.
The clan goes marching on!

Chorus: Glory to our grand old family,
Virile, worthy, brave and loyal!
Glory, "Spem suc-ces-sus ae-lit!"
The clan goes marching on!

The world respects Old Glory, Kings her sure protection crave.
She thrills our souls to strong devotion, makes us proud and brave.
Betsy made our banner to in triumph ever wave!
The clan goes marching on!

James Ross was a minister of sacred sentiment;
Alex' was a soldier who to danger bravely went;
George Ross was a signer of a famous document.
The clan goes marching on!

Henry was in Congress; Thomas, tutor to a prince;
Richard was a lawyer who could all the world convince;
Sir John was a hero, there has been none braver since.
The clan goes marching on!

Sir William, Robert, Hugh and James were fathers of our clan;
Posterity of Isaac, John and Lyman never ran;
George Ross was quite virile, William was a sturdy man.
The clan goes marching on!

The Rosses dwelt in England, Scotland, Ireland and in Wales,
Where English tongue is spoken now the name of Ross prevails.
How could the nations but advance when Ross Clan never fails.
The clan goes marching on!

The sons of Ross have courage any task or foe to face;
Our daughters all are lovely with their beauty, charm and grace;
The leaven of our family is a blessing to the race.
The clan goes marching on!

No matter what opposes or what evils may assail;
With Ross allied in worthy causes justice will prevail
Those who claim the name and blood of Ross should never fail.
The clan goes marching on!

(A) INTRODUCTION

THE Ross Family is among the forty-nine "best families" selected by the American Historical-Genealogical Society for whom the Society has published family histories during the past few years.

The Ross Family has been prominent in the British Empire and in the United States, its members having played important roles in war and in peace. Family pride is a commendable trait and should be cultivated. All Rosses have just cause to be proud of their family history and traditions.

In reference No. 14 we find the following regarding the origin and meaning of the name Ross:

The surname, Ross, has several explanations. In some cases it is undoubtedly foreign. In Domesday we find, in Kent, a tenant called Anschitel de Ros and in Buckinghamshire another named Ansgotus de Ros. These probably came from Ros, in Normandy.

The name is also of British local origin. The great barons, Ros or Roos of York, sprang from Peter, who in the reign of Henry I assumed his surname from his lordship of "Ros." Some of his descendants passed into Renfrewshire as the vassals of Richard de Moreville in the 12th century, settled at Halkhead and Dalton, and founded the great Ross family of the South of Scotland.

There are several towns in the North and South of Britain called Ross, and these are probably the source of the name of some branches.

The name seems sometimes to have reference to the complexion of the first bearer, being a modification of "Le Rous," "Rufus" or the "Red." The ancient family of Renfrew, descended from Alysandre, from as early as the reign of David I down to the 15th century, wrote themselves "the Ross of Renfrew."

The data in this volume is gathered from reliable sources. We have selected what we consider the most important material. Many of the daughters, and sons for whom no issue was shown, have been omitted from the pedigrees. A missing symbol indicates that a name has been omitted. Those desiring further information are advised to consult the volumes mentioned in the list of References.

The compiler hopes that, in producing this volume, he is bringing to the Ross Family information which will be of interest and value to them, and that he is rendering an important service to the public. He and his associates will be glad to give their co-operation to members of the family who are interested in having a complete genealogy of the family published.

Unless otherwise plainly shown, the persons in this volume whose names are accompanied by three figures are children of the immediately preceding persons bearing immediately preceding numbers. All persons in each group bearing the same letter as a part of their numbers are directly related. The generations of the descendants of those bearing numbers of three figures are represented as follows. However, some of our material is published as copied from various records without rearrangement according to this system.

(B) THE ROSS COAT OF ARMS

COAT of Arms is an emblem or a device which is displayed by titled persons, persons of royal blood, and their descendants. Coats of Arms were originally used for purposes of identification and recognition on the field of battle as well as in civil life.

It is claimed by some writers that Coats of Arms, in a crude form, were used by Noah's sons after the flood. There are records of other Coats of Arms, in one crude form of another, at different periods of ancient history. Heraldry, however, as we know it today, did not become of much importance until soon after the invasion of England by William the Conqueror, A. D. 1066. Heraldry became of general interest at about the time of the Crusades.

The Ross Coat of Arms shown in the front of this volume is the Arms of the Rosses of Carstairs, whose pedigree is contained in this book; the Baronets, of Balnagowan; and, from ancient times, of the Clan Ross of Scotland, from whom most Rosses trace their descent. Nearly all Ross families of the present day have Coats of Arms similar to it.

This is the most widely used of all Ross Coats of Arms, and has been in existence for many centuries. It is described in BURKE'S GENERAL ARMORY, BURKE'S LANDED GENTRY, BURKE'S PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE, HISTORY OF THE HIGHLAND CLANS and other reliable works on heraldry, in many cases accompanied by illustrations and pedigrees. It has been used for generations by many American branches of the Ross family.

	HERALDIC LANGUAGE	ENGLISH DESCRIPTION
Arms	Gules, three lions rampant argent.	Three silver lions rampant on a red shield.
Crest	A dexter hand proper issuant grasping a wreath of laurel vert.	A right hand, naturally colored, grasping a green laurel wreath.
Supporters	Two savages wreathed about heads and middle with laurel, vert, grasping clubs, proper.	Two savages bound about head and middle with green laurel wreaths and grasping clubs, natural colors.
Motto	Spem Successus Aelit (Latin).	Success nourishes hope.

Sir Bernard Burke, of Heralds College, London, said: "Heraldry is prized by all who can show honorable ancestry or wish to found honorable families."

Besides its family significance this Coat of Arms makes an excellent mural decoration and inspires the admiration and comment of all who see it.

It is quite appropriate that members of the Ross family who have a pride in their ancestry should display the family Coat of Arms, in proper colors.

(D) PROMINENT BRITISH ROSSES, PAST GENERATIONS

ALEXANDER ROSS: (1647?-1720); bishop of Edinburgh; in 1678 was admitted to his first charge in the Old Church of Perth; elected to the divinity chair at Glasgow; principal of St. Mary's College. With the fall of James II, he became an important figure in ecclesiastical politics; went to London in support of James, but he had already fled. Ross was a man of character, accomplishment and ability; neither on the occasion of the union (1707) nor of the rebellion (1715) did he emerge into public politics.

ALEXANDER: (1699-1784); Scottish poet; graduated M.A. at Oxford; in 1732 obtained the position of schoolmaster at Lochlee. He was always interested in writing poetry for his own amusement, and finally some were published, his best being "The Fortunate Shepherdess." Burns wrote, "Our true brother Ross was a wild warlock, one of the sons of the morning." Dr. Blacklock and John Pinkerton were loud in their praise, also. The poem was for many years, and still is, very popular in the north of Scotland.

ALEXANDER: (1742-1827); general; b., Scotland. Served with distinction throughout the American War of Independence; aide-de-camp to Lord Cornwallis and was sent home by him with the dispatches of the Battle of Camden; represented Cornwallis as commissioner in arranging the details of surrender of Yorktown; in 1783 was deputy adjutant general in Scotland; was one of the most intimate friends of Cornwallis, whose correspondence in three volumes was edited by his son, Charles Ross.

DAVID: (1728-1790); actor; made his first appearance at Drury Lane, 1751, as Young Bevil in "The Conscious Lovers." The part suited him well; he was approved by a distinguished audience and sprang into immediate favor. In 1757 he made, in his favorite character of Essex, his first appearance at Covent Garden; in Edinburgh, 1767, he opened a theater and had a prosperous business. He was most successful in tragic character.

SIR HUGH DALRYMPLE: (1779-1868); field marshal; graduated from Royal Military Academy. His military career is too varied and lengthy to give here. He was offered by Wellington the post of brigadier major of royal artillery in Ireland, but refused; received the grand cross of Bath in 1855. His early war services and soldier-like character had given him a high standard of efficiency, which he ever strove to maintain.

HORATIO: (1801-1886); sportsman; son of Hercules Ross; large land owner and intimate friend of Lord Nelson; joined 14th Light Dragoon, but this proved irksome, and he retired with the rank of captain, 1825-1830. Captain Ross was a conspicuous figure in the sports world in shooting and steeplechase, also becoming known for his sculling and walking ability. For nearly 30 years he had led the life of a quiet Scottish laird, when suddenly the volunteer movement and consequent development of rifle shooting brought him conspicuously before the world. He acted as captain of the national rifle team for ten years, making in 1863 the highest score for Scotland. When well over seventy Ross kept up the activity of his youth, and three of his sons inherited their father's skill as marksmen.

JAMES: M.D. (1837-1892); physician; b. in the highlands of Scotland; began general practice in Lancashire, attaining considerable success in the district; published several works and wrote for medical periodicals; in 1881 published a "Treatise on the Diseases of the Nervous System" (two volumes). It was the first large modern textbook on the subject in England and was widely read. This led to his election as a fellow of the Royal College of Physicians.

SIR JOHN: (1777-1856); rear admiral and Arctic navigator. During his career he was wounded 13 times and was immured in French prison three times. In 1818 he sailed with several others to attempt to make the northwest passage through Davis Strait. Another expedition resulted in the survey of the peninsula since known as Boothia, of a great part of King William's Land, of the Gulf of Boothia and the discovery of the magnetic pole by Ross' nephew Lieutenant James C. Ross. In 1834 he was knighted; the Geographical societies of London and Paris awarded him their gold medals, and he became a C. B. He wrote of his experiences and on nautical subjects.

JOHN MERRY: (1833-1883); Scottish writer; educated at the University of Glasgow, where he devoted much time to English literature and won the prize for the poem in the class of logic and rhetoric; sub-editor of Chamber's Encyclopaedia; in 1886 was senior English master of the royal high school; was a fellow of the Royal Society of Antiquaries of Scotland; during the latter part of his life prepared a work on Scottish history and literature to the period of the Reformation.

JOHN WILSON: (1818-1887); author; during early years lived in British Guiana, where he acted as secretary to the vendue master of Berbice; returned to England and engaged in literary work; edited the second and third series of "The Universal Decorator." His first separate publication was "Ninian," a poem in three stanzas. In 1846 he produced a translation of Paul Fevol's "Les Amours de Paris;" also wrote much in popular magazines.

PATRICK: (1740 ?-1804); major general, chief engineer, Madras; in 1758, by royal warrant, became practitioner-engineer; in 1763 became engineer-extraordinary; when the court of directions of the East India Co. decided to reorganize the engineer establishment upon an entirely military basis, was selected for the post of chief engineer and sent to Madras; there became a member of the Governor's council. When Colonel Smith moved against Tanjore, Ross accompanied the army as chief engineer, constructing the best siege works ever seen in the country. He brought to notice the inadequacy of the engineer corps, with the result that in 1796 that corps was reorganized on a larger scale. One year later he was made major general. He represented Horsham, Sussex, in Parliament from 1802 (when he returned to England) until his death.

ROBERT: (1766-1814); major general who won Bladensburg and took Washington; son of Major David Ross, of Rosstrevoy, an officer who served with distinction in the Seven Years War; served with the 20th foot in 1799. The regiment was sent to Holland to form part of the Anglo-Russian army under the Duke of York, soon after going to Egypt, and Ross was given command of the battalion for his service. The army met the French at Maida, and Ross, arriving when the French were turning the British left, drove the swarm of sharpshooters before him, sent the French off in confusion and opened fire on the enemy's battalions. Stuart, in his general orders, spoke of Ross' action as "a prompt display of gallantry and judgment to which the army was most critically indebted." His regiment embarked for Portugal, where it was repeatedly engaged and where his knowledge of French and Spanish was a valuable asset. He was aide-de-camp to the King, and his services and death were referred to in the speech from the throne.

SIR ROBERT DALRYMPLE: (1828-1887); speaker of the South Australian House of Assembly; born in West Indies; educated in England; joined the commissariat department of the army, being with the Turkish contingent in the Crimea; volunteered his services on the west coast of Africa, and during that period sat as a member of the legislative council for the gold coast colony; also served as colonial secretary; in 1860 went on active service to China; two years later went to South Australia as aide-de-camp. He was president of the Royal Agricultural Society of South Australia; member of the council of the University of Adelaide; chairman of the Adelaide Steamship Company and director of other commercial companies.

THOMAS: (d. 1675); poet and politician; native of Scotland; adhered to Charles II in his exile; was much employed in the political intrigues of the period; in 1658 was appointed tutor to James Scott, the King's natural son; in 1661 was constituted keeper of the King's library and created M.A. at Oxford the following year; was the author of some few books and poems.

WILLIAM: (1656 ?-1738); twelfth Lord Ross of Hawkhead. (The Rosses of Hawkhead claim descent from a Norman family which at an early period possessed the lordship of Ross in Yorkshire. The first of the family who came to Scotland was Godfrey de Ros. Sir John Ross was chosen one of the three Scottish champions to fight in 1449 with the Burgundian knights in the presence of James II.) William took a prominent part in the crusade against the covenanters; in 1683 became major in a cavalry regiment and was engaged in the pursuit of Argyle; in 1686 was a member of the Scottish privy counsel; after the ascension of Queen Anne, became lord high commissioner of the church of Scotland, of which he was a steady supporter, and remained loyal to the Government during the rebellion of 1715.

WILLIAM: (1762-1790); Gaelic poet. Making occasional excursions with his father, he became proficient in the Gaelic dialects of the western highlands and received impressions from scenery and character which stimulated his poetic powers. He was an accomplished musician, sang well and played with skill on several instruments. His poetic range was considerable, and Gaelic scholars claim for him uncommon excellence in pastoral, descriptive and anacreontic verse. Two volumes of his Gaelic poems were published.

SIR WILLIAM CHARLES: (1794-1860); miniature painter; son of William Ross, miniature painter and teacher of drawing, who exhibited at the Royal Academy. His mother, Maria, was a portrait painter, who also exhibited her work at the Academy. He showed great ability and at an early age was admitted to the schools of the Royal Academy, where he received much kind advice from Benjamin West. During his youth he was awarded many medals and a silver palette for his work. As a miniature painter he obtained a large practice in the highest circles. Queen Victoria, Duchess of Kent, Queen Adelaide, the Prince Consort, the royal children and members of the royal families of France, Belgium, Portugal and Saxe-Coburg sat for him. In refinement, purity of color and in truth his works are said to have no rival. Several of them are in the South Kensington Museum.

(K) ROSS TOWNS, ETC.

There are in the United States towns as follows:

Ross: Ark., Calif., Iowa, Minn., Mont., N. Dak., Ohio, Tex., Wyo.; ROSSBURG: Minn., N. Y., Ohio.; ROSSFORD: Ohio; ROSS FORK: Mont.; ROSSLYN: Ky., Va.; ROSSMORE: W. Va.; ROSSMOYNE: Ohio; ROSSPOINT: Ky.; ROSSSTON: Ark., Okla., Pa., Tex.; ROSSVILLE: Ga., Ill., Ind., Kans., Pa., Tenn., Tex. There are also in the United States numerous counties, townships, streets, avenues, etc., bearing the name "Ross." This is eloquent testimony to the high esteem in which the name is held in this country.

(L) ROSS CENSUS OF THE UNITED STATES

The compiler of these records has made up a list from city and telephone directories of the United States, and from other sources, as follows. Care was taken to eliminate, wherever possible, persons known or believed to be colored, or of nationalities other than British and American:

Alabama	72	Maine	98	Oklahoma	98
Arizona	38	Maryland	51	Oregon	41
Arkansas	52	Massachusetts	588	Pennsylvania	864
California	979	Michigan	454	Rhode Island	59
Colorado	126	Minnesota	121	South Carolina	12
Connecticut	113	Mississippi	44	South Dakota	8
District of Columbia	68	Missouri	200	Texas	412
Delaware	18	Montana	67	Tennessee	109
Florida	134	Nebraska	64	Utah	30
Georgia	58	Nevada	12	Vermont	31
Idaho	22	New Hampshire	48	Virginia	78
Illinois	651	New Jersey	404	Washington	157
Indiana	363	New Mexico	11	West Virginia	89
Iowa	138	New York	1179	Wisconsin	83
Kansas	99	North Carolina	39	Wyoming	5
Kentucky	163	North Dakota	14
Louisiana	37	Ohio	684	Total	9285

To secure an estimate of the "Ross population" of the United States, we we figure as follows:

	(a) multiply by
Only about half the names were taken from each directory consulted	2
Half of the Rosses reside in the rural districts or in small towns having no printed directories which were available to us.....	2
There is an average of more than four persons in each American family.....	4
Since Ross daughters marry and have as many descendants as the Ross sons, there are as many descendants of "other names" as there are bearing the name Ross (though it is much easier to locate the latter).....	2
By multiplying each figure of column (a) into the preceding figure, we have a total of.....	32
Conservative estimate of the Ross population of the United States, one-half of whom bear the name Ross and one-half of whom bear other names.....	297,120

The estimated Ross population of any of the states may be obtained by multiplying the figures shown by 32. There are Rosses in every state of the Union. The Ross population of the British Empire is probably equal to that in the United States.

(M) RELIGIONS OF THE ROSSES

For several centuries the Rosses lived in Scotland. Most of the Scotch and, likewise, the Rosses, were and are of the Presbyterian faith.

There are a few Rosses of the Catholic faith in the British Isles, but it is estimated that their number does not exceed seven per cent. of the entire Ross population.

The Rosses who came from the British Isles to America continued in the faith of their fathers, for the most part, though their descendants in this country today will be found in the memberships of practically all the various churches. It is estimated that of all the Rosses in America who are church members, at least ninety per cent. are of the Protestant faith.

Biographical sketches of 34 Rosses appear in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA. Their religious faiths are shown as follows: BAPTIST, 1; CONGREGATIONALIST, 3; EPISCOPAL, 3; LUTHERAN, 1; METHODIST, 4; METHODIST EPISCOPAL, 1; PRESBYTERIAN, 7; ROMAN CATHOLIC, 1; religion not stated, 13.
